Re: Community Organization Award
Boy Scouts of America

Dear Lion,

I recently read an article in Scouting Magazine about community organizations and the BSA's Community Organization Award. ( A copy of the article is enclosed. Also see the BSA Fact Sheet).

The article states that 7 community organizations such as the American Legion recognize its members who are also involved in Scouting. The Lions are the largest non-religious organization that sponsors Scouts groups. (See the article from the Lion's magazine from October 1995).

I believe that Lion's International should recognize its member who are Scouters. I obtained a copy of the American Legion requirements for their award and the same is attached.

I am the Chartered Organization Representative for Cub Pack and Scout Troop 484 in Alamo Area Council, San Antonio, Texas. I had been the Scoutmaster of the troop for 13 years.

I believe Lions International should develop a comparable program for its members who are Scouters.

If I may be of assistance in this regard do not hesitate to call on me.

Yours in Lionism,

Lion Warren Wolf
